Lincoln Davis Memorial Forest: 607 acres
Sharon, NH

NEFF’s first forest is now known as the Lincoln Davis-Cabot-Morse Memorial Forest in recognition of later land donations. Dr. Lincoln Davis deeded the property’s first 607 acres to NEFF in 1945, Thomas Cabot and Virginia Wellington Cabot gave an adjoining 176 acres in 1964, and Clarissa Morse gave an additional 146 acres in 1985. This has been a busy forest for NEFF over the years thanks to regular harvests conducted to Exemplary Forestry standards, management activities that have improved wildlife habitat, and frequent trail use. The forest offers hikers a view of Mount Monadnock and a place to connect with the popular Wapack Trail.

Chamberlain Reynolds Memorial Forest: 150 acres
Center Harbor, NH

Located in the Squam Lakes Region, this forest was donated to NEFF by John Wister and named for his two friends, Allen Chamberlain and Harris Reynolds. Chamberlain was a founder of the Massachusetts Forest and Parks Association and preceded Harris Reynolds—NEFF’s founder—as the organization’s Executive Secretary. The property’s nearly mile-long shoreline is a critical nesting area for loons, and provides dramatic views of the lake and mountains. NEFF has worked in partnership with the Squam Lakes Association (SLA) for decades at Chamberlain Reynolds; SLA maintains the forest’s hiking trails and manages its popular campsites. New England Forestry Consultants (NEFCo) has also played an important role at Chamberlain Reynolds, where NEFCo forester Peter Farrell has managed forestry activities on behalf of NEFF since 1994.

NEFF incorporator William Wharton began purchasing the lands that now compose Wharton Plantation as early as 1905, and then donated the entire property to NEFF later in his life. These initial parcels were composed of abandoned farmland that Wharton replanted over the years. The forest now features an extensive trail system and offers views of beaver-created wetlands and Baddacook Pond.

Braintree Mountain Community Forest: 1,547 acres
Braintree & Rochester, VT
The Braintree Mountain Community Forest represents the largest donation of land to NEFF in the organization's history. Paul Kendall and Sharon Rives of the Todhah Hill Foundation gifted the forest to NEFF after the couple spent decades assembling it from smaller parcels of adjacent lands. They undertook this personal land conservation project to protect the headwaters of the Riford Brook watershed from development and to ensure opportunities for outdoor recreation and sustainable forestry. The forest offers 360-degree mountain views, and has an excellent trail system for hiking, snowshoeing, and cross-country skiing.

Venture Brook is one of two properties that make up NEFF's ongoing Downeast Woods and Wildlife conservation project. We do not currently own Venture Brook, but are on track to complete fundraising for it by the end of 2019.
